DALE BROWN CALLED ATTORNEY AFTER ATTORNEY FOR help after she was sexually assaulted at her workplace for 15 years. No one would take her case. Then she met Rosemarie Arnold. A fierce, unrelenting and effective advocate for her clients, Arnold agreed to represent Brown and waged a three-year battle to win her a settlement worth nearly $4 million.

Like so many of Arnold's clients who have sent her heartfelt thank-you notes over the years, Brown wrote, "You are the only one who believed in me. You are a miracle worker. You are attentive, compassionate and diligent in your representation of me."

It's victories like this one against the Bergen County Department of Parks that have landed Arnold on the New Jersey Super Lawyers® list every year since its inception in 2005. And it's no wonder. Arnold has earned the respect of clients, fellow attorneys and judges, who know that she comes to court meticulously prepared and armed with the legal expertise and vast experience that comes from winning.

The walls of Arnold's office are covered with hundreds of notes like Brown's, written by other grateful clients. They laud her compassion, professionalism and understanding, as well as her kindness, brilliance, attentiveness and dedication. Other letters came from judges and legal experts, who compliment Arnold's courtroom skills.

Arnold makes a practice of standing up for clients when no one else will, just like she did for Brown. She embraces a core philosophy of indefatigable representation, living up to the "courtroom bulldog" nickname she earned from the Bergen County Record. "We're very aggressive and we really fight for our clients," she says. "I'm a victims' rights advocate in my heart."

This approach has helped Arnold grow her firm from a one-woman shop into one of the largest personal injury practices in Bergen County. Along with 12 other attorneys, Arnold handles high-profile wrongful death cases and serious injury accident claims, including car and truck accidents, fall down injuries, dangerous and defective products, dog bites and workplace injuries. Her firm also takes on workplace discrimination cases involving age, race, sex, disability, national origin and religious bias. Arnold's New Jersey practice includes Natalie Zammitti Shaw, and Sheri Breen and Evan Baker, who, together, have been named multiple times to the New Jersey Super Lawyers list. Arnold also practices civil litigation in New York with high-powered attorney Joseph Tacopina.

A certified civil trial attorney, Arnold is a sought-after media expert. She has shared insight and expertise with The New York Times, New York Post and Newsday, as well as CBS News, CNN, Fox News, NBC News, The Today Show and A Current Affair.
